(1) Didier Raout, who was born on March 13th in 1952, is a French physician and microbiologist, specializing in handling infectious diseases. He also teaches this discipline at the Faculty of Medicine of Aix-Marseille Univeristy. Didier Raout was born in Senegal; his father was serving there as a military doctor; his mother is a nurse, too. His family returned to France in 1961 and settled in Marseille. He gained a remarkable attention all over the world during this current Corona Virus crisis when he delcared that patients of Covid 19 can take the hydroxychloroquine treatment.

(2) Among Didier's team a Moroccan young lady called Sara Belali who works for the doctor in an attempt to find a cure to the disease. The 28 year old girl obtained her doctorate in the same field of bacteria and viruses. She is orginally from Casablanca. After she had earned her international Master in 2015 in Ben Msik University, Physics option, she joined the Institution of Health in Marseille run by Didier. Her Hijab doesn't affect her bonds with her boss and colleagues. In 2019, she got her doctorate with honour and her scientific research thesis impressed the doctors who attended her PhD Dissertation Defense.

- (3) On 17 March 2020, Didier received significant attention when the Corona virus spread all over the world by saying that hydroxychloroquine can combat the virus illustrating with the hundreds of patients who got cured thanks to the medicine. The French Health Minister was sceptical about it, "The scientific tests are being carried out in an attempt to prove the efficiency of the medicine prescribed by profeesor Didier. Once the results are scientifically confirmed, we'll announce it officially and make the drugs available to all patients not only in France but all over the world," he said.
- (4) Likewise, in Morocco, on 16th March, the schools were closed and so were all the other public places except the can't-live-without ones, namely supermarkets and groceries. The quarantine started and the life style changed radically. Instructors teach on line, social distance should be kept, no more handshaking, and wearing facemasks and regular hygiene are always highly recommended. Supporting Didier's prescription, Moroccan doctors use the hydroxychloroquine and numerous patients felt much better. Many countries were impressed by the Moroccan strategy in coping with the disease by building the largest hospital in Africa as long as producing a large quantity of local facemasks which were exported latey to the neighouring countries.
